...external appearance of the schooner to deuote her character; not a gun or small arm of any kind was visihle. All hut a few of the meu constituting her crew were secreted helow deck. There, too, was hidden away a valuahle cargo, captured from British merchantmen. The prohlem was to keep the English men-of-wars' men from going helow should they hoard the hrig; also to convince them that there was no one of the few countrified, stupid looking Yankees worth impressing into the naval service of his Britannic Majesty. Only the laukest looking prlvateersmen slouched about. Israel and a man known as "Ben" did the talking aud the fiddiing whilst the frigate hailed the Newhurjpurcraft. After a round shot or two had been fired across her how to attract the attention of the unconscious Yankees to the fact that they were within efectlve range of the English frigate a colloquy was hegun hy the aid of a speaking trumpet. Exactly how he fooled the Britisher, Israel Hildreth used to rehearse with vacuous face and nasal, high-pitched yankee twang. Like the story of the "Arkansas Traveller", a violia action is necessary. "Schooner ahoy I" roared the Euglish captain, "Heave-to, or I'll sink you." There was no response or attention apparently paid to this threat, although Israel's muscles were as tense as his fiddiestrings. Boom Zip-zip-zip, and a cannon hall ricocheted some distance ahead of the schooner. Then the riddie was heard playing very soft and slow as the Yankee, roused from his careless rhapsody, drawled out, "Gosh!" 'Schooner ahoy-oh! Heave to, or I'll sink you!" came the reiterated demand, from the frigate flying the cross of St. George. "Goshness!" ejaculated the surprised Israel, as he and the other ...
