It is estimated that there are over 5,000 online dating sites worldwide and over 122 million people trying to find love on line. Some do find love, but many others find they have been "molested for money" by a criminal. Instead of a happy ending they end up with a broken heart and financial ruin. The huge number of people dating online and the general lack of education about the scammers and their scams make online dating sites a goldmine for those seeking an easy mark and their money. With an unending supply of new targets they can victimize, steal hearts and inflict financial ruin at will. It is extremely difficult at best, and impossible at worst, to stop these predators through legal means. However, those with the knowledge and insights provided in this book can stop them and their criminal intentions. Education is the key to identifying the scam and scammer before they get to your heart and bank account. This book will help you avoid heartbreak, an empty bank account and possibly even jail.
